series, no. 702.) pap., 60 c.

The story is laid in the time of the French Revolution in 1793, which the author considers as the emancipation of the whole world from the bonds of king, priest and noble. By witchcraft a young girl is brought to loathe and fear the man she has loved for many years. He becomes desperate, turns traitor and becomes a convict for life. Convict life is described in detail. By intervention of the clergy the spell laid on Sylvia is broken, she recovers her health, and joins and marries her convict lover. The many superstitions of the period are skilfully handled.

"The coming terror" paints "the dreary millennium of state socialism." "What the world will become when the state superintends all living functions and governs all living acts may be gathered from the direful prophecy of social nullity painted with blind and misplaced enthusiasm called 'Looking backward," says the author. The tone of the other essays is quite as unconventional and fearless. A few of the titles are: "Are men born free and equal?" "On descending into hell;" "The modern young man as critic;" "Is the marriage contract eternal?" "Is chivalry still possible?" etc.

The girls are all musicians and play the piano exquisitely. Their several love-stories fill a bright story.

Hemstreet, W: Mind is matter; or, the substance of the soul. N. Y., Fowler & Wells Co., [1891.] 11+252 p. D. cl., $1.

The writer claims soul to be a thing, and just as material as the body is, whether electrical or ethereal; and that mind, or sentience, is the innate quality of that thing like cohesion or energy in matter, although in neither case can we tell the why or wherefore. He argues that by demonstrating the corporeal nature of the soul we demonstrate its immortality, in the imperishability of matter and its alliance with volitional tenacity or love of life. He suggests this theory will add a new system of social philosophy and explain and support existing theology. There are many practical psychological lessons in the book for every-day life, as well as a system of natural religion. well as a system of natural religion.

Leighton, Caroline C. Intimations of eternal life. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1891. c. 3–139 p. S. cl., 75 c.

The author, in the preface of this little work, states that having been separated from schools, churches and libraries for a long period, she is very much impressed upon returning to a centre of thought with the amount, upon returning to a centre of thought with the amount, of scepticism which has crept in among sacred things. With her thought aroused by conditions so different from those of her early days, she has investigated the subject of a future existence and has examined and quotes many conflicting statements from scientific and religious authorities. Her deductions and speculations while searching for the truth are given in a clear and concise form, and will interest those engaged in the study of the great question of the future life.

The "mighty" are the anarchists and socialists throughout the world. The story unfolds itself chiefly in the Western States. The great danger of a law-less, reckless, dissatisfied element in the population is described in detail. Bernard Ozanne, a French artist, is imbued with ideas that preclude a woman, no matter what her ability, from having a vocation. He imparts these views to a young feminine artist, with whom later he falls in love. For a time Diane Verryot repulses his suit, arguing that she cannot subdue the artist for the woman; that a marriage with Bernard under these conditions will result badly. Ozanne finally overcomes her scruples and they are married. The theories of both are tested, and we have a novel that deals with a complex question.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

In the series of articles which are appearing in The Bookworm, entitled "Bookworms of To-Day," by Mr. W. Roberts, the subject of the July number will be Mr. Fred. Burgess, whose collection of Dickensiana is second only to that of Mr. W. Wright, of Paris, and whose dramatic library is one of the most extensive in England.

THE old-established Paper and Printing Trades Journal has been purchased by John Southward, who for some time past has been editor. Mr. Southward, who is the author of the standard "Practical Printing" and of the articles on printing in the new editions of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" and "Chambers's Encyclopædia," is well known for his technical knowledge and experience. The paper will in future be published at 18 Featherstone Buildings, High Holborn, W. C., London.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

AT last the United States leaves the roll of dishonor and places itself among other civilized nations by doing justice to authors. The President's proclamation of July I completes and crowns the work of the last Congress, and International Copyright is now a settled fact. The proclamation is confined, so far, to English and French-speaking nations, simply because these are the only countries which have thus far made the necessary representations to our government. It is understood that the President has given careful personal attention within the last week to the questions involved in the construction of the law, and it is altogether worthy of praise that he has promptly fulfilled the act on the very first day when the law itself made action possible. The decision of supreme importance is, of course, that British authors are entitled to protection in this country, and reciprocally that American authors are entitled to full protection in Great Britain; for it is one of the incidental good effects of the action of this country that the law of Great Britain has been more clearly settled than ever before. It is understood that Lord Salisbury's government, through the Board of Trade, sought the advice not only of its own law officers, but of the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General of the Gladstone administration, on the question whether first publication was sufficient and residence unnecessary to assure copyright in Great Britain to foreign authors. In the opinion of leading copyright authorities this was the fact, but there remained a legal doubt on the subject which has been much cleared by the unanimous opinion of these high authorities, that first publication is the one and only requisite for copyright in England.

It is most fit and proper that France and the French-speaking countries, Switzerland and Belgium, should be included in the first proclamation, as France itself has been the most ready to respond and has been of the utmost helpfulness throughout the contest for copyright, while Switzerland and Belgium—the one the home of the Berne Conference, the other always in advance in the protection of authors—certainly deserve to be ranked next to France. It is understood, however, that the President will take up from time to time the cases of Germany and other countries, so that there need be no unnecessary delay in extending the privileges of our act to citizens of still other countries. We have little doubt, in fact, that the President will finally decide that all the countries of the Berne Conference are entitled to come within the scope of the act.

The existence of the manufacturing clause and other restrictions, while wholly unacceptable to authors in general and not generally acceptable to the publishing trade itself, should not cloud the satisfaction of Americans with an act which marks so great a step in advance as does this. The recognition of the right of literary property and of justice to authors, whatever their nationality, is at last assured, and there is little reason to doubt that the result will justify the expectations that American literature will be better off and American buyers of books no worse off under the new régime than under the old. It now remains for American publishers to show their loyalty to the principle at issue and their far-seeing business judgment by proving to the American people that justice to authors is not incompatible with cheap as well as good books.

CONSIDERABLE machinery is required to enforce certain of the provisions of the new law, and we understand that the Librarian of Congress is already at work preparing the lists called for by the act, which are to be printed by the Secretary of the Treasury and sent to postmasters and collectors of customs. We hope to be able to give further details of the method proposed, probably in our next issue.

IT is peculiarly gratifying that THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY records the President's proclamation in the first number of its 40th volume. For the twenty years represented by these volumes THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has been a steadfast adherent of International Copyright, at first with considerable dissent on the part of a portion of the trade, but at last with the unanimous and hearty approval of the whole trade. While this work of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has not been officially acknowledged, it has nevertheless been very kindly and gracefully recognized in many private quarters, and at least "the end crowns the work"-which is sufficient reward to those who work for a principle and not for "the spoils of victory."

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

PRESIDENT HARRISON on July 1 issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, It is provided by section 13 of the act of Congress of March 3. 1891, entitled "An act to amend title sixty, chapter three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to copyrights." that said act "shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign State or nation when such foreign state or nat on permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis of its own citizens; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may, at its pleasure, become a party to such agreement;"

And whereas, It is also provided by said section that "the existence of either of the conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation made from time to time as the purposes of this act may require;"

And whereas, satisfactory official assurances have been given that in Belgium, France, Great Britain and the British possessions and Switzerland the law permits to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to the citizens of those countries:

Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, do declare and proclaim that the first of the conditions specified in section 13 of the act of March 3, 1891, is now fulfilled in respect to the citizens or subjects of Belgium, France, Great Britain and Switzerland.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seai of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and ninetyone, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and fifteenth.

Benj. Harrison.
By the President: Wm. F. Wharton, Acting

Secretary of State.

The proclamation is preceded by a recital of the Copyright act passed by the last Congress a copy of the circular letter to United States Ministers, and an able and exhaustive report to the President prepared by J. B Moore, Third Assistant Secretary of State, interpreting the law and explaining why its operations are limited to the four countries named in the proclamation, and why the nations party to the Berne agreement are excluded from the proclamation on that ground. Mr. Moore's report was made directly othe President on June 27. It says in part:

"The first in order of the conditions stated in Section 13 is that the act shall apply to the citizens or subjects of a foreign state or nation when such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens.'

"The second condition is that the act shall apply to the citizens or subjects of a foreign state or nation 'when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may, at its pleasure, become a party to such agreement.'

"The terms of the first condition are clear, and have not as yet presented any difficulty of interpretation. The terms of the second condition are less determinate, and have given rise to much discussion and to variant interpretations."

Mr. Moore then describes succinctly the formation at Berne in 1886 of the international union, including Belgium, Germany, France, Liberia, Spain, Great Britain, Hayti, Italy, Switzerland and Tunis. The United States Minister to Switzerland though present, did not sign the convention. Mr. Moore then goes on to say: "By the eighteenth article of the Berne Convention it is provided that countries which have not joined it, but which by their municipal laws 'assure legal protection to the rights of which the convention treats,' shall be admitted to accede thereto on their request to that effect. been argued that this eighteenth article completely satisfies the second condition specified in Section 13 of the act of March 3, 1891, and ipso facto entitles the contracting parties to a proclamation by the President admitting their citizens or subjects to participation in the benefits of that act, without reference to the question whether the present legislation of the United States would be accepted as satisfying the conditions of accession to the convention.

The argument that the signatories of the Berne Convention are entitled to the benefits of our act merely because the convention provides for the accession of other Powers, Mr. Moore thinks "neglects both the reciprocal feature of the second condition, as well as the fact that by Article 18 of the Berne Convention a condition of accession is prescribed, namely, that the municipal laws of the countries desiring to accede must 'assure legal protection to the rights whereof this convention treats.' The act of March 3, 1891, unquestionably does assure legal protection to the rights of which the Berne Convention treats, but it does so only under certain limitations specified in the act. most important of these limitations is that found in Section 3, which requires that copies of the book, photograph, chromo or lithograph deposited to obtain copyright shall be printed from-type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from negatives or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom."

The provision as to typesetting, etc., in the United States, Mr. Moore points out, weighty one in the deliberations of Congress upon the adoption of the statute; and in inserting in the body of the statute a provision for the conditional extension of its benefits to the citizens or subjects of foreign states, it could scarcely have been the intention of Congress to put this government in the position of extending those benefits to the citizens or subjects of foreign states, while our own citizens were denied reciprocal advantages except on condition of the repeal of very important provisions of our statute. The construction which we have combated, while extending the privileges of our law to the citizens of foreign states, would actually deprive this government of the power to exact for our citizens the privilege of copyright in those

"If the parties to the Berne Convention shall decide that the legislation of the United States entitles this government to the privilege of accession on its request to be permitted to do so, there will probably be no difficulty in determining what should be done, for in that case the citizens or subjects of the signatories of that international agreement would, in the opinion of the undersigned, clearly be entitled to the benefit of our law under the second condition of Section 13. The United States could then 'at its pleasure' become a party to the convention, which also secures a general reciprocity in the granting of copyright among the states of the literary and artistic union. But until such a decision shall have been made, applications for the benefit of our law should be presented under the conditions of Section 13 of our law.

"The first condition specified in Section 13 of the act of March 3. 1891, presents no difficulty. In ascertaining whether this condition is fulfilled it is entirely irrelevant to inquire whether the foreign law is the same as our own, and grants copyright as freely and fully in every particular. Congress, in acknowledging and protecting the property of the author or artist in the products of his intellect, was not so illiberal as to require that the foreign law should offer a strict reciprocity by containing the same provisions as our

Mr. Moore says that several countries have applied for the benefits of the law under the first condition. The Belgian law clearly falls within the first alternative condition, as does the French law, and consequently Belgium and France were included in the proclamation. Great Britain was the third country to apply, and greater interest attached to her application, not only for the reason that she will be the greatest beneficiary under the recent act, but also because there was much doubt as to whether her laws did not require the author to live in British possessions as a condition of copyright, which condition would prove fatal to her claim of substantial equality in The first was satisfactorily cleared treatment. up by Lord Salisbury, who says in a note to the Switzerland applied for the benefits of the law June 26, under the first condition, and, as Mr. Moore shows, was admitted upon proof that her law was in compliance with that condition.

American Minister in London that residence in her Majesty's dominion is not a necessary condition, and that English law permits to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright

Mr. A. R. Spofford, in a recent interview with a reporter of the N. Y. Sun, expressed the opinion that the addition to the work of the copyright office, "through the extension of the copyright system, will no doubt be considerable. It is not likely, however, to show a very large increase immediately, since some time will be required for new publishing arrangements and contracts to be entered into by foreign authors. It is not probable that the importation of foreign printed books now extant will be affected in any way. The importation from abroad of all books written and published after the law goes into effect, except such books as claim no copyright here, will be summarily cut off. Books not claiming copyright here will probably still have the larger proportion of circulation among the masses of the people.

"Under the international provisions of the law the Library of Congress, beginning on July I, will be brought into a novel and intimate relation with the Customs Bureau of the Treasury Depart. ment in its task of preventing the illegal importation of pirated copies of such publications as shall have been copyrighted by American citizens here or by foreigners abroad in conforming with the Copyright act. It is made the duty of the Librarian to furnish to the Secretary of the Treasury copies of the entries of titles of all books and other articles whereon copyright has been completed, and the Secretary is required to compile and print, at intervals of not more than a week catalogues of such title entries for distribution to all collectors of customs and to the Postmasters of all offices receiving foreign mails. This will be an entirely new departure. A sharp lookout will have to be maintained along the Canadian and Mexican borders, particularly the Canadian, to prevent the infraction of the law, since constant attempts will doubtless be made to import from Great Britain English books pirated abroad and shipped here for sale.

"One of the most important domestic provisions of the new law is that section securing to authors the exclusive right to translate or to dramatize their works. It will prevent pirates and adaptors of all grades from appropriating the labors of others, and henceforth an author's right to the coinage of his brain can be enforced by judicial processes. This change will be welcomed with delight by authors, since their rights in this respect were never clearly defined before."

To the query, "Do you suppose that French and German authors, whose works are widely circulated in the United States, will attempt to copyright new and modified editions of those same pirated works?" Mr. Spofford replied: "They can make the entry. It will be my duty to allow the copyright whether the works upon which the copyright is desired have been published previously or not, but that would give them only a prima facie title, the ultimate validity of which can be determined only by a United States Court upon suit brought for infringement of the copyright. There will probably be innumererable cases of what may be termed 'conflict of rights' under the new law. Some of them have already been presented to the Library. But the decisions of the courts cannot be anticipated. I shall be bound to enter foreigners' titles, regardless of the ultimate validity of their claims. presumption is, however, that no statute of law is retroactive in its effect."

All subjects are grouped into 10 classes numbered with the digits, 0-9, e. g., 5 is Science. Each class is treated as a separate library and divided into 10 divisions numbered likewise, e. g., 51 is Mathematics. Each division has 10 sections, e. g., 513 is Geometry. Many of these sections are further divided so that the most marter topic has its specific number, all after the first three figures being arranged as decimals. Thus 513.55 is "Modern Geometry, Reciprocal Polars." All subjects in the scheme, books on shelves, pamphlets in cases, clippings in scrap-books, cards in catalogues, notes in boxes and trays, etc., are arranged in simple arithmetical order and the full index in a single alphabet enables a novice, according to Mr. Dewey, "to assign the minutest topic to its exact place in the classification or to find anything already assigned by the quickest and cheapest method yet discovered. Bost., C: A. Cutter, 1890. 8°, $1.25 to $2.50.

"Prof. Dziatzko's work," says Mr. Linderfelt, "is a marvel of ingenious condensation, lucidity and completeness. It would have been impossible to evolve out of mere theoretical reasoning such an array of minute directions as to the manner of proceeding in the innumerable variations and peculiarities of bookmaking, which are the result of the vagaries of authors, publishers, and are the result of the vagaries of authors, publishers, and printers of the last 450 years, and now contribute their share toward making the life of the conscientious cataloger a burden. On the contrary, Prof. Dziatzko's rules are the outgrowth of the actual passing through his own hands of every one of 340,000 cards and the 330,000 books and pamphlets which they recorded; and the examples he cites are actual existing facts." Taking this as a foundation, Mr. Linderfelt has prepared a manual suited to the needs and habits of the American cataloger. suited to the needs and habits of the American cataloger, who, in many respects, has very different ideas from his German cousin, and has made it in a way an epitome of all rules by his references to other codifiers.

GESETZE ÜBER DAS URHEBERRECHT im In- und Ausland, nebst den Internationalen Litteraturverträgen und den Bestimmungen über das Verlagsrecht. Leipzig, G. Hedeler, 1890-91.

3 pts 8°, pap.

Contains the text (translated into German) of the laws and treaties now in force in every country of the world having copyright laws on their statute-books. The concluding part contains the text of the conventions concluded and in force in 1891 between the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, Germany, France, Great Britain, Italy, Hol'and, Norway, Austria, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, Hungary. On the whole 22 treaties besides the treaties between Switzerland and France and between Belgium and France, of which notice to terminate has been given, are now in force, the editor of the work having previously been careful to inform himself on this point by inquiry at the Foreign Offices in Brussels, the Hague, Copenhagen, Rome, Berne, Lisbon, ontains the text (translated into German) of the laws in Brussels, the Hague, Copenhagen, Rome, Berne, Lisbon, etc. This deserves to be emphasized, because treaties, like those between Switzerland and Belgium, Holland and Spain, Belgium and Italy and others, which have expired, continue to be erroneously quoted as still in existence.

This edition has been considerably extended and now neludes every country in the world. A list of publishers and book collectors has been added. The list of "Fic-titious and Real Names of Authors, Initials, etc.," has also been made more complete and accurate, but ap-pears to be mainly a selection from Cushing's excellent work, without trace of original investigation. The list of second-hand booksellers is remarkably full and satisfactory, at least as regards the English booksellers; while the list of libraries, other than English, is scant and unreliable. In addition to the foregoing a large amount of useful general information relating to books, etc., is included.

Mr. Smiles makes his work a succession of episodes in the life of one of the greatest publishers of the 19th century—that is, one history is followed out to its close before another is taken up. ### RETIREMENT OF EDWARD H. PHELPS.

Condensed from Progressive Springfield.

IT was a surprising revelation which came to the people of Springfield, that a change had been consummated in the proprietorship and control of the Phelps Publishing Company, by which Edward H. Phelps, its founder and manager up to the present time, disposes of his interest in the concern and retires from the line of duty in which he has won so conspicuous success. That he is able to do this at the comparatively early age of but little more than fifty years is a gratifying fact. For thirty years Mr. Phelps has been prominent in Springfield journalism; here his first work was done, and here has been wrought out the success which has made the name of his company known wherever the English language is read.

Mr. Phelps was born at Belchertown, Mass., where he was a farmer's boy till he reached the age of fourteen. He attended the schools of that town, the Monson academy, and the high school of this city. Quick to appreciate human nature, and with a natural love for journalistic work, he laid the foundations of his life work (as has many another) by voluntary contributions to the columns of the Republican. Although he was but a boy in years, his items were so acceptable and his "nose for news" so apparent that he soon came to be highly regarded by the then city editor of the Republican, so that when the latter was called to Idaho he installed young Phelps into his place. He proved one of the most valuable aids to Mr. Bowles in building up the reputation of the Republican as the newspaper of Western New England. It was then in the early days of the war period, and no long time was required to show the qualities of the new city editor.

For eleven years he remained on duty with the Republican, building up the system of local correspondence which has set the fashion for so many newspapers since that day. In 1872 he took the local editorship of the Springfield Union, then, as now, an evening paper, and there his talents rapidly made themselves manifest in the improvement of that department of the news-

Six years were devoted to this paper, and then Mr. Phelps "hung out his shingle" as a publisher, in connection with H. H. Sanderson, with whom he had been associated on the Union, buying the New England Homestead, an agricultural paper which was being published in the city by Henry M. Burt. In 1880 Mr. Phelps bought out his partner, and the same year Farm and Home, a monthly, was started. Later on the Phelps Publishing Company was formed, with a capital stock of $200,000, and the business of the Orange Judd Company at New York was bought, including also the American Agriculturist and the publishing business in agricultural books.

The leading mind in all of these enterprises has, of course, been backed by an able corps of assistants, to whom he now turns over the conduct of the immense business, the controlling interest being bought by George S. Graves and Herbert Myrick, two trustworthy lieutenants whose capabilities in their respective branches of journalism rank well up with those of their late captain, and he, in retiring, is fortunate indeed in having such competent hands ready to receive and hold the important commission which now comes to their hands.

COMMUNICATIONS.

INDEXING THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL.

BALTIMORE, June, 1891.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly ;

DEAR SIR: In reference to the article in P.W. of June 13, "The Profession of Bookselling," allow me to suggest that the young bookseller instead of trying to memorize the Trade List should employ his time in making an index to the lists of those publishers who have not already furnished one, such as Macmillan, Holt, Scribner, etc. In this way he may familiarize himself with the books of the various publishers, and at the same time make a permanent record for future reference. If he wishes to go still further he could combine his own index with the printed indexes of those publishers who supply a complete catalogue, and in this way do something for his own improvement, as well as help to make the Trade List still more useful, by having an index for same.

Hoping soon to see "The Trade List" issued with an index even better than "The English Reference Catalogue of Current Literature,"

I remain, yours truly,

A Young Bookseller.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEN. B. F. BUTLER'S book will be ready in October.

PROF. ROBERTSON SMITH is said to be at work upon a new dictionary of the Bible.

MR. EDMUND GOSSE has undertaken to write the article "Poetry" for the new edition of "Chambers' Encyclopædia."

IGNATIUS DONNELLY is engaged upon a work which he believes will place the existence of the Shakespearian "cipher" beyond doubt or controversy.

DR. EDWARD EGGLESTON has brought suit against the author of the play "Blue Jeans," which it is alleged is largely plagiarized from Dr. Eggleston's novel "Roxy."

MRS. JANE G. AUSTIN is said to be at work on another Plymouth romance to be called "Betty Alden." This will be the second in a series of five books covering the entire period from the landing of the Pilgrims to the American Revolution, "Standish of Standish" being the first, "The Nameless Nobleman" third, "Dr. Le Baron and His Daughters" the fourth, and another yet unnamed the fifth.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ALBERT COLEMAN, for twenty-two years with J. B. Lippincott Co., died suddenly at his home in Philadelphia on June 8. At the time of his death, and for several years previous, he had charge of the manufacturing department and superintended the art-work turned out by the Lippincotts. Mr. Coleman was in apparently perfect health on the day of his death. After supper he played with one of his children on the porch of his house, when suddenly he fell out of his chair — dead before any of his family could come to his aid. Death was caused by the rupture of a blood-vessel in the brain. Mr. Coleman was well liked by all who knew him, and his death is deeply regretted by his employers and associates.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The firm of Jackson & Alexander, dealers in new and second-hand books, formerly of 75 Court Street, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. J. E. Jackson will continue the business under his own name at 124 Court Street.

CHICAGO, ILL.—F. C. Miller, of "Miller's Old Book Store," has taken into partnership H. C. Davis. They have increased their capital and taken a larger store at 196 La Salle Street (one block south of their present quarters), to which they will remove about the 10th inst.

NEW YORK CITY.—Albert G. Wigand, oldest son of the late Otto Wigand, is continuing the bookbinding business of his father for the estate. With the aid of the experienced workmen for many years connected with the firm he is prepared to turn out work fully up to the standard so long maintained by his father.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—George H. Rigby has removed to 1113 Arch Street, a more central location than that heretofore occupied by him, being within a stone's throw of the Pennsylvania and the proposed Reading depots. He will, as heretofore, make a specialty of fine art, standard and rare books, Americana, etc. Catalogues will still be issued with more regularity, and business generally will be conducted on a larger scale.

PHILADELPHIA, PA .-- The National Publishing Co. doing business temporarily at 135 N. 7th Street, has just purchased the large five-story and basement factory building of Armstrong, Craig & Co., paper bag manufacturers, Nos. 239, 241 and 243 Levant Street. This is a comparatively new brick building, containing all the modern conveniences, and being particularly well adapted to the business of the company. It has a frontage of 67.4 feet on Levant Street, and extends in depth on both lines 163 feet. It is well lighted on all sides, extending along a small street on the south side, and has a large well on the other side. There is also a covered driveway for teams on the north side, which runs through to the shipping-room and to the coal shutes. They hope to occupy the premises almost immediately. The building is to be cut up into departments about as follows: The store-room in the basement, company's offices and shipping department on the first floor, the press and printing room on the second floor, the bindery on the third floor, the sheet or folding room on the fourth floor, and the album factory on the fifth The site of the burned manufactory will be built upon just as soon as it is possible to begin the work with advantage. Another factory will be erected there, which will most likely be devoted to the company's business.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Payot, Upham & Co. are now occupying the large and commodious four-story building, corner of Pine and Battery Streets.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The S. Carson Company, wishing to reduce their stock of standard and miscellaneous books, are offering 25 and 50 per cent. discount for lots of new copyright books, and for standard authors in sets respectively. They also offer "a large supply of children's books—for all ages—for sale at 25 to 40 per cent. off."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE New York Typothetæ met on June 29 to consider the request of Typographical Union No. 6 that nine hours' work shall be the rule in book printing offices. The meeting decided that for the present the request could not be granted.

THE TIME CHART Co., Ypsilanti, Mich., has issued "Cowell's Time Chart of the World," useful and interesting to travellers and tourists by land and sea. Besides the chart the book contains a large amount of general information useful to travellers.

E. Schuberth & Co., N. V., have just issued in book form two lectures by Dr. F. L. Ritter on "Music in Its Relation to Intellectual Life" and "Romanticism in Music." The second of these discusses the principal composers of the romantic school, and points out the qualities which distinguish them from older schools.

JOEL MUNSELL'S SONS, Albany, have published a supplement to Durrie's "Index to American Genealogies," issued in 1886. It makes a thin volume of sixty-one pages in double columns, and includes, among other works of reference, the three volumes of "American Ancestry," published by the same firm a few years ago.

A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, have made arrangements to carry a full and nearly complete line of A. J. Holman & Co.'s standard quarto Bible editions. In this they will have both family and pulpit styles, in either the English, German, Swedish or Dano-Norwegian language, and all varieties of binding, from the cheapest to the most expensive.

THE next addition to Macmillan & Co.'s Golden Treasury Series will be a volume entitled "Balladen und Romanzen," edited by Prof. Buchheim. The book, which is nearly ready for publication, will contain the best productions of German ballad literature from Bürger to our own times, and will be provided with a critical introduction and notes giving the source of the ballads and romances.

In Paris has just appeared "Dieu," a sequel to the "Fin de Satan" of Victor Hugo. It is said that the editors of the poet's manuscripts, Vacquerie and Meurice, have only to add one more volume to those already published, and then their task of editing the "3000 pages of manuscript" will be accomplished. The last volume is to be entitled "Océan," and after its publication the editors will commence grappling with Victor Hugo's enormous correspondence, parts of which, ranging over the period from 1820 to 1880, will be published.

A USEFUL book called "The O. K. Theatrical Guide," has been published by Mr. Wilfred North, of New York. It comprises, in 117 tall, narrow pages, clearly printed, a large quantity of practical information for persons who are interested in theatrical matters, and especially for theatrical managers and agents. The theatres in the various cities of the United States and Canada are specified, and particulars are given as to their size and accommodation. The newspapers and the theatrical writers are also mentioned, and lists are given as to railways, and travel and travelling companies.

The publication by Charles Scribner's Sons of the University Extension Manuals will begin soon. The volumes will appear in rapid succession. Among the early ones will be "Money: its use and abuse," by W. Cunningham, of Trinity College, Cambridge; "The Fine Arts," by Professor Baldwin Brown, of the University of Edinburgh; "English Colonization and Empire," by A. Caldecott, of St. John's College, Cambridge; "An Introduction to Philosophy: the philosophy of the beautiful," by Professor Knight, of the University of St. Andrews; "Physiography," by H. R. Mill, and "The Study of Animal Life," by I. Arthur Thomson, both of the University of Edinburgh.

Some one gives the following as the nicknames of certain authors: Emerson — The Sphinx. Schiller—The Republican Poet. Goethe—The Poet of Pantheism. Shelley — The Eternal Child. Keats — The Resurrectionized Greek. Byron—The Poet of Passion. Moore—The Butterfly. Jeremy Taylor—The Shakespeare of Divines. Coleridge—The Insulated Son of Reverie. Bunyan—Sponsor of the People. Shakespeare—The Myriad-Minded. Ben Jonson—The Divine Bully of the Old English Parnassus. Spenser—The Poet's Poet. Chaucer—The Well of English Undefiled, or the Morning Star of English Poetry. Caedmon—The Milton of the Forefathers.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE PENN PUBLISHING COMPANY announce "The Story of the Odyssey," by Dr. Edward Brooks, a companion volume to his "Stor of the Iliad;" "The Braganza Diamond," a lively story, by James Otis; "Delsartean Pantomimes," arranged by Mrs. J. W. Shoemaker; "Correspondence," a book of suggestions, precepts and examples for the construction of letters, by Agnes H. Morton; "The Art of Conversation," by J. P. Mahaffy; "The Debater's Treasury," by William Pittenger; and "Shoemaker's Best Selections, No. 19." This house also will bring out an edition of the much-read works of Henry Drummond, and will have ready new editions of many of their former publications in attractive bindings.

DANIEL M. TREDWELL, Flatbush, L. I., will publish in the fall a new edition of his "Monograph on Privately Illustrated Books; or, a plea for bibliomania." It will give an account of the privately illustrated books in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and in other places in this country, how they are made, who made them, who bound them, their cost, and interesting information on the various phases of bibliomania. The new book will contain about five hundred pages, printed in the best possible manner by De Vinne, in vellum or cloth cover. There will also be a large-paper edition, limited, in vellum cover with slip; and an edition of twenty-five copies on Whatman drawing paper. Only enough copies will be printed to cover expenses.

THE HISTORICAL PRINTING CLUB, Brooklyn, has just issued two pamphlets, "The Press of North Carolina in the Eighteenth Century," by Stephen B. Weeks, and "Wills of George Washington and his Immediate Ancestors," edited by Worthington C. Ford. The North Carolina press began its productions in the middle of the century, and these were not more appetizing than laws and journals except for an occasional political tract or sermon or text-book. Mr. Ford, in addition to the wills of Washington already known, has added a number of cognate letters from Washington, with the later wills of Bushrod and John Augustine Washington and John Custis, and has provided a convenient index of proper names. The editions in both cases are limited.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the [New York] Secretary of State's Office had an interview on June 29 with Elmer Wilklow, of Kripple Bush, N. Y., who originally sold the Staten Island deed referred to in our last issue. Mr. Wilklow varied the previous statement made by him as to his receiving all of the old documents in his possession from his grandmother ten years ago. He now says that he received them from four persons, one of whom is dead, and that he could not tell whether the Staten Island deed came from his grandmother or one of the other persons. The papers received from the four men referred to were given him after 1883. There is now said to be no doubt that the Staten Island deed had been stolen from the State's records, for it fitted accurately in the place in the book from which the deed was miss-The Esopus deed, also missing, has been identified as the one in the possession of John D. Sleight, of Kingston, N. Y. He obtained it from Elmer Wilklow. How these important papers got from Albany to the possession of Wilklow is a mystery which the State authorities will try to solve.

THE following is Dr. Edward Everett Hale's own account-given to the San Francisco Examiner—of the way in which he came to write his famous story, "The Man without a Country." "This is the way I came to write about him: It was in '63, when the country was torn by the civil war. There was a very exciting election in one of the Middle States. A prominent politician became disgusted with the way affairs were going. He said some very hard things. 'I hate the United States,' he said. 'I wish there was no such country. I'm sorry I was born here. The general in command of the Northern troops sent this emphatic gentleman out of the State. There was some excitement over the episode, and it gave me the idea of my story. I wanted to show what would become of a man who wished he had no country. I wrote the story for the Atlantic, and I did not want my name to appear. I wanted it to seem to be written by a navy officer. By some inadvertence my name was published, however, as the author. There was published, however, as the author. was much discussion over the hero. Some said he was not dead. Some said his mother and sis-ters were living. There were all sorts of denials ters were living. and counter-denials. The fact is there was no such man, though there was a Philip Nolan, whose life and adventures were well known in the South."

THE CASINO ART COMPANY, Boston, have their fall and holiday publications well under way, and call the attention of the trade to a long line of books of illustrations and etchings, with accompanying popular texts. The volumes in the Art Series all contain from six to eight etchings, with text. Their size is uniformly 7 x 10. The proofs are celluloid, very striking and entirely new this season. L. K. Harlow, J. A. S. Monks, W. H. W. Bicknell and Mrs. H. R. Blaney show characteristic work in this series. Three new titles are added to the Gem Series for the coming season. William Goodrich Beal and L. K. Harlow supply the art-work. The Souvenir Series is a pretty collection of tiny illustrations of the poets' homes and choice selections from their works. The plates are etched by Beal, White, Harlow, Blaney and other favorites. Among the authors represented are Long. fellow, Whittier, Emerson, Lowell, Bryant, Tennyson, Havergal, Ingelow, Hawthorne and Dickens. The Favorite Series includes ten titles, among them "Favorite Poets," "Actresses,"

"Comedians," "Singers," "Authors," "Women Writers," "Preachers," "Noble Women," etc. Portraits of all the favorites are given, and in many cases the autographs are added. In the Unique Series the publishers intend to include works from all the leading English and American authors, and they aim to make it the finest illustrated series that has yet appeared. Six volumes are now ready, covering Gray's "Elegy," Tennyson's "Brook," Irving's "Angler," Goldsmith's "Deserted Village," Ingelow's "High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire," and Hawthorne's "Footprints on the Seashore." art-work is by William G. Beal and L. K. Harlow. There will be Seven Beacon-Light Text-Books at greatly reduced prices, and ten Holiday Booklets, composed of selections chosen by Mrs. A. L. Williams and W. Sloan Kennedy from many noted authors, and illuminated by many well-known artists. All the work of Mrs. N. V. Walker can now be obtained only through the Casino Art Company.

METHUEN & Co., London, will publish in the fall a new volume of poems by Mr. Rudyard Kipling.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press a volume entitled "Games, Ancient and Oriental," by Mr. Edward Falconer, illustrated with ten photographs and other full-page plates.

W. & A. K. Johnston, of Edinburgh, will publish the work on heraldry begun by the late George Burnett, Lyon King of Arms, and completed by the Rev. John Woodward, of Montrose. It deals with the subject in both ancient and modern times, and in all countries. It will be in two volumes, containing forty eight colored plates, eight black and white plates, and over 100 cuts in the text.

HERBERT SPENCER'S new work, entitled "Justice," is nearly through the press. It forms the fourth division of his "Principles of Ethics," which he has executed out of its turn as being the most important division. Parts II. and III., completing the first volume, will next be undertaken; and afterwards, if he should succeed in completing these, parts V. and VI., which, with the part now issued, will make up the second volume.

THE forthcoming work by the Hon. George Curzon, M.P., on Persia, will not be published till the fall. It will fill two large volumes. An entirely new map of Persia is in course of preparation for it, and it will contain several other maps and nearly a hundred illustrations, and a bibliography of Persian history, geography, and travel. It is not intended to be so much a record of the author's travels as a compendium of information about modern Persia and a history of the steps by which in recent years that country has been brought within the pale of civilization. There will be chapters on the Shah, royal family, ministers, government, institutions and reforms, revenue, resources, army, trade, communications, as well as accounts of all the principal provinces and cities, and the recent results of archæological research.

Brundage. In this volume—beautifully printed in colors, in Paris, by the most approved methods of photographic reproduction—may be written the little stranger's date of birth, its weight from month to month, the date of the advent of its first tooth, its first word, its first pair of shoes; when it changed from long to short clothes, its first day at school—in fact, the history of baby from birth to majority. Large quarto, 11 x 9 in size, 72 pages, in either portfolio or bound in handsome combination of gold and different colored cloths, $3.75.

The Great Singers.

The Great Instrumentalists.

3 vols., 16mo, tastefully bound in cloth, gilt tops, boxed, $3.75; half levant morocco, crushed and polished, gilt tops, $7.50.

The Comtesse de Brémont, now residing in London, undoubtedly numbers among her acquaintances more of the musical world than any other living writer. Her volumes are delightfully chatty, and possess the charm of seeming to take us actually into the presence of the world's great tone-poets and their chief exponents. The set makes an appropriate holiday gift as well as a volumble set makes an appropriate holiday gift as well as a valuable addition to any library.

THE BACHELORS' CLUB.

By I. ZANGWILL. A most amusing description of the doings of a club of twelve bachelors. The principles of the club may be summed up in its maxim that marriage is a crime against woman for which no punishment, not even exclusion from the club, could be sufficiently severe. The conditions of membership were four: No member must follow a profession involving celibacy. No member must have ever been disappointed in love. No member must be under thirty. No duly elected member must use a latch-key. I vol., 12mo, cloth, illustrated with 32 designs by George Hutchinson, $1.50.

In "The Bachelors' Club" the author has struck a fresh vein of bizarre humor, and embodied in it a good deal of topical satire as well as quaintly expressed wisdom and epigrammatic knowledge of the world.

COLLOQUIAL GERMAN FOR TRAVELERS AND STUDENTS.

Being No. 2 of the "Phonetic" Series of Handbooks to the Study of Languages. Uniform with "Colloquial French." 75 cents.

The success of "Colloquial French" has led to the issue of this new volume, and "Colloquial German" is distinguished by the same thoroughness in preparation and execution.

DYSPEPSIA.

By Dr. JOHN DEWAR, author of "What Ails the Baby?" A sensible statement of the causes and effects of this, the most common complaint in America; with sound advice as to treatment. and diet. I vol., 16mo, bound uniformly with "What Ails the Baby?" 50 cents.

This, the second volume of the "Red Cross" Series of Health Handbooks, will be very helpful to those who "eat to live, not live to eat."

MARGERY DAW'S HOME CON-FECTIONERY.

By Lucy W. Bostwick. A thoroughly reliable treatise on the preparation in one's own kitchen of attractive, wholesome and palatable cooked and uncooked candies, from the oldfashioned molasses candy to elaborate bon-bons. Every recipe is the result of years of trial and has been repeatedly tested and successfully made. I vol., square 16mo, tastefully bound in cloth, 50 cents.

This little volume is bound most attractively, and will. be found very appropriate for candy-party souvenirs.

"SURPRISE MODEL" PICTURE BOOKS.

Upon opening any page in these books each picture, by an ingenious arrangement, opens as it were by magic into model relief, and upon the book being closed, or the page turned, becomes perfectly flat again. Stiff boards, cloth back, enamelled covers, size 113/4 x 9, per volume, 75 cents.

- 3. Seaside Fun. By ARTHUR PENNEL and E. GOURLEY.
- 4. A Visit to the Country. By ARTHUR PENNEL and E. GOURLEY.

CHARLES DICKENS.

IN 15 AND 30 VOLUMES.

T is a well-known fact that for some years it has been impossible to find a set of Dickens in 15 volumes that met the wants of those desiring his works in good clear type, well printed on fine paper, handsomely illustrated, tastefully bound, and suitable for library use, at a mod-

The existing demand and need of the public for such an edition has been fully met in the one we have now ready.

It is also equally true that there is not a 30-volume set of Dickens published in this country or England that meets all these requirements so completely as our 30-volume edition. We beg leave to call attention more fully to some of the

POINTS OF EXCELLENCE.

The Electrotype Plates have been cast from new large-faced type, well leaded, easy to read, and great care has been used in the proof-reading to preserve accuracy in the text.

The Paper has been carefully selected, and is of suitable weight for volumes of convenient size and thickness. That used in the 15-volume edition is a high grade of opaque, machine finish, while the 30 volumes are printed on calendered paper, natural color, especially adapted for a fine

The Illustrations have been faithfully reproduced by GEO. T. ANDREW & Co., at great expense, and comprise all the original ones by PHIZ, CRUIKSHANK, and others; to these have been added 65 new cuts from etchings by PAILTHORPE, contained in no other edition, and a fine Steel Portrait of Dickens, making in all 799 full-page illustrations in the 30 volumes and 240 in the 15 volumes. No other 12mo edition contains so many illustrations as our 30-volume edition.

The Presswork has been executed in the most careful manner by BERWICK & SMITH, of Boston, whose reputation for fine artistic printing is well sustained in the clear and sharp impressions of both text and illustrations.

The Bindings have been selected with the view of obtaining the most tasteful cover designs and harmony in colors.

The Result as a piece of book-making is highly satisfactory, furnishing a series of volumes creditable to the publishers and a pleasure to every purchaser.

Volumes sold separately. This edition being sold in sets or in separate volumes, the advantage of this arrangement will be appreciated by those who find it more convenient to purchase one or two volumes at a time.

Jobbers in Miscellaneous and School Books, Supply the Trade with Everything in the Book Line. Send for our five catalogues.

Besides having at hand the resources of the New York Market, we are Special Agents for Boston and Philadelphia Publishers, and for S. C. Griggs & Co. and A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago.

This House is Characterized by its Promptness, Carefulness, and Low Price.

DESIRING to RETIRE FROM BUSINESS, owing to the feeble health of Mr. J. W. RANDOLPH, who has been in the book business for 60 years, we offer the entire stock of books, new and old, at a reduced price (or will sell the business as a whole). It is one of the most valuable stock of books south of Philadelphia, consisting of Law, Theological, Medical, Historical, Virginia Historical publications and miscellaneous books. Many rare and valuable works now entirely out of print. It will pay the antiquary to examine the stock.

To one who desires to continue the business, this is an opportunity not often presented.
